Defeats 'part of the process'

Manager Ira Jackson had no complaints after back-to-back defeats for Hythe over the weekend.

The Cannons lost top spot in the Southern Counties East Premier Division after going down 3-1 at Erith & Belvedere on Saturday.

Tunmise Akanni gave them the lead but the Deres hit back to end the visitors' unbeaten start to the season.

Hythe then lost 2-0 at home to Kennington on Bank Holiday Monday, the team who replaced them at the summit. Jackson, whose side visit Faversham Strike Force this Saturday (3pm), was gracious in defeat.

"It's part of the process," he said. "We are three years behind other teams, because we had to start from scratch, and with that there's going to be teething issues.

"You can't expect to win every game in this league. This is the league we're in - tough opposition every single week.

"I can't say against Erith or against Kennington that we were the better team or we were hard done by, we just weren't up to the challenge that was presented to us and we got beaten by the better side in both games.

"It's our job to prove in the next game that we can be the better side and win the game.

"I'm never going to lie after a game. If we were the better team, we were the better team. "But, usually, if you were the better team, you win.

"I don't think football has favourites, I don't think the odds were in Kennington's favour or anything like that.

"Ultimately, it's 11 versus 11 and, on the day, Kennington's 11 were better than our 11, so they deserved all three points.

"If we were doing well and our team deserved the three points, we would have got them.

"That's something our players have to learn, that you have to deserve three points."

■ In Division 1, Charlie Gill and an own goal gave Lydd a 2-1 weekend win over Chessington & Hook but they lost 2-0 at Rochester United on Monday. The Lydders host Croydon this Saturday (3pm).

Feet on the ground

By Thomas Reeves

Jay Saunders won't allow his Folkestone players to get carried away with their unbeaten Isthmian Premier start to the season.

Invicta moved into the play-off places on Bank Holiday Monday as they battled to a 2-1 derby victory at Chatham.

It was a third straight win for Folkestone after they started the league campaign with back-to-back draws.

While there are good signs for boss Saunders' new-look squad, the season is still very much in its infancy.

"We, as a management team, have in our head where we want to be," said Saunders. "I'm disappointed.

"I think we should have another two points on the board - so I'll always ask for a bit - but the boys have been superb. We won't get carried away.

"As I've just said to them 'All you have done is have a good start - that's it'.

"There's no point having a good start like we have had and then losing your next three or four. We have got to keep them level-headed.

"As a group, I think they will and I'm sure we'll improve as we go along."

There is a more youthful feel to Folkestone this term, albeit skipper Kevin Lokko, midfielders Jack Jebb and Dean Rance, alongside striker Ade Yusuff, do provide experience.

Saunders said: "I deliberately went younger this year. I felt we probably needed to.

"I'm pleased, although it does put more responsibility on the older ones. Coming here [to Chatham], where it's a tough environment, to bring a Rancey in - who's been there and done it - is the plus of it.

"The last two games in midfield before, we've had Mikey Berry and Maxx [Manktelow] in midfield, who are both 19, and Donell Thomas is 21.

"It's young in this league. Don't get me wrong, Chatham has a young side as well.

"But to have that experience, and even to bring Jack Jebb off the bench, is good."

Saunders felt former Football League defender Lokko, 29, had made an error in the build-up to the goal that allowed Chatham to take the lead on Monday.

But he responded as he swept home to complete a fine move just minutes later before Yusuff got the game's all-important third goal in the second half.

That came after right-back Ben Mason claimed a stoppage-time winner in a 2-1 victory over St Albans at Margate's Hartsdown Park last Saturday, with the visitors having cancelled out forward Kweku Lucan's first-half goal before Mason struck.

"Lokko is probably a bit disappointed he hasn't got a couple more on Monday," said Saunders, who worked with the defender at Maidstone.

"Obviously, I've known him a long time and he's played for me for a long time, and I think he's disappointed with the goal we conceded.

"He's been faultless, to be honest, and he makes one mistake that gets punished.

"I think he was a bit down but I think that just shows his character. For his goal, it was a really good move. I'm delighted.

"I've said to him 'Make a mistake, puff your chest out and get on with it' and I know he'll do that. He's been a real asset.

"It's been tough because, really, we've been playing without a right-sider.

"Brad [Walledge] has done a really good job but to have Ben back, naturally, that gives us that balance. He's a good player."

As work to install a new 3G pitch at Cheriton Road continues, Invicta will face Marcel Nimani's Sevenoaks in the FA Cup first qualifying round at Ashford United this Saturday.

While the Oaks ply their trade a division below Folkestone in Isthmian South East, they can be a dangerous team on their day.

"I know Marcel well," said Saunders. "I've known him a long time and he's a great guy. They always play football and have good players.

"What pleases me is I like to leave the league and head into the cup on the back of the win, which keeps the boys positive.

"We can now go into training this week and plan for it. We'll show them full respect.

"I know people will say 'They're a league below us so it's a great draw' but we're playing at Ashford, so it's a different ground for us, and it's tough for the boys. That's why we have got to prepare right.

"We'll do our homework, like we do with everyone and, hopefully, we'll go there and get through."

Wendy says she was 'reduced to tears' after being surrounded by wardens and threatened with a £100 fine over an alleged dog rule breach

Gran's upset over fine for rule 'breach'

An 81-year-old grandmother says she was "reduced to tears" after being surrounded by three council wardens in a park and threatened with a £100 fine.

Wendy, who did not wish to give her surname, had been walking her Labrador, Harley, at the Lower Leas Coastal Park when she was approached by enforcement officers.

She says one warden came up to speak to her before two others joined him, leaving her feeling "surrounded" and "intimidated".

They accused her of breaching new dog control rules and demanded her personal details, claiming she had been seen days earlier with Harley off the lead in a restricted area.

'You don't have to swim - but do visit'

By Millie Bowles
mbowles@thekmgroupp.co.uk

An amusement park owner is urging people to visit his seaside village, despite its poor water quality rating.

Mark Woolls, who runs

Dymchurch Amusement Park, says there is much more to do in the area than just swimming.

In November last year, the Environment Agency downgraded the beach's water quality to "poor" and a no-swim warning was issued.

Earlier this year, businesses in the town said they "feared for their survival" and worried the rating would scare tourists away.

Mr Woolls, who has run his park for 30 years, said: "You don't have to not come because of the water.

"You can still paddle in the sea, you can still walk in the sea, it's just that you can't swim underneath the water.

"You can still go on the beach, play cricket, and play football. "It's just a lovely sandy beach."

The 63-year-old also says there are several local businesses to enjoy, rather than just the coastline.

He explained: "There are lots of little shops that sell ice cream, there are great fish and chips, great bars.

"We've got the amusement park where we've got some rides that have been updated in the last years.

"Come for a good, fun day out."
